ABOUT TRAVIS BOYER

Travis Boyer grew up in Southern Illinois, where he developed a love for God's great outdoors and family values. He is married to his amazing wife Amy, and together they have four boys- Jordan, Cody, Jordan, and Jason, and a granddaughter, Ava. Travis assisted with the startup of a food plot seed company for seven years by helping with research and development of seed blends and setting up dealers. In addition, Travis was an area manager for the Wal-Mart Distribution Center for 24 years, and in addition to being a real estate professional, he is a general contractor in the construction industry.

Travis' passion for the outdoors began at a very young age, which was passed down from his father. He started out hunting small game and then he found his true passion for trophy whitetail hunting. With thousands of hours in the field hunting, planting food plots and habitat improvement, he has gained a lot of knowledge and experience in what to look for in a prime piece of property.

Travis has over 40 years of hunting experience and 20 years of filming his hunts and his family's hunts. Travis has great core values that he applies to all aspects of his life, including his faith, integrity, drive, sense of discipline, ethical values, and family values. With Travis' passion for the outdoors, along with his understanding of the local area combined with Mossy Oak's nationwide marketing reach, he can help you find a piece of property to create new family memories. Whether you are a first-time homebuyer, looking to sell your existing property, or seeking to purchase a recreational property, Travis will work very hard for you to help you achieve your real estate goals.
